A Note to Readers

This version of Patrick Morican's 1996 report, "War Memorials of Manitoba: A Beginning Inventory" has retained its essential content. All original texts have been reprised. Some of the images have been updated with colour versions, and some of the original detailed photographs, which focused on text features, have not been included here. There have been a few additions since the original inventory, and where there have been relocations of some memorials that information has been updated.

War Memorials of Manitoba

A Beginning Inventory

Monuments, buildings, plaques, parks, chapels, crosses, cairns, lakes, plinths, statues, streets, gardens, windows, and walls, define the many and varied Manitoba war memorials. They are testaments to individuals and communities at historic moments in the province's history.

There are many more. Buildings have been destroyed. Others are inside buildings, barracks, churches, legions, schools, places of employment. Some are in remote places, a few may have been moved, temporarily out of sight. A program of the Department of Natural Resources naming lakes after war casualties is not covered in this first draft.

Memories furnished by veterans and their descendants fade, and some memorials languish for want of attention. Written and photographic records, therefore, assume greater significance for succeeding generations.

This "beginning inventory" was made possible by a grant from the Heritage Grants Program of Manitoba Culture, Heritage and Citizenship.

Bruce Donaldson and his staff of the History Section of the Historic Resources Branch of Manitoba Culture, Heritage and Citizenship provided encouragement, information and advice.

The Manitoba and Northwestern Command of the Royal Canadian Legion helped by distributing the questionnaire to its branches. Legion members who filled in the questionnaire provided valuable information.

This beginning inventory, of more than 200 memorial sites, attempts to bring together information in one place, prompted by sentiments of the memorial message, "Lest We Forget."

It is but a beginning.

WINNIPEG

Portage Avenue/200 Woodlawn

Provincial Plaque from 2005 reads:

The Women's Tribute Memorial Lodge is a significant building, developed as a veteran's memorial with funds raised by the women of Manitoba.

The Lodge was conceived as a symbol of gratitude and remembrance for those who served in the First World War.

Constructed in 1931, the building was not just a monument, but a living memorial containing an auditorium, games room and a special space called the Room of Silence.

These facilities were used by the veterans from the Great War to help them continue with their lives, and as a commemorative space to remember all those that had served their province and country.

Designed by prominent Manitoba architects George W. Northwood and Cyril W. U. Chivers, both of whom had served in the First World War, the Women's Tribute Memorial Lodge also is a rare Manitoba example of the Art Deco style of architecture.

With its basic cubic form, crisp edges and effective geometric decoration, it is an exemplary example of the style.
