

Person index for “The Tread of the Pioneers” by Joseph H. Metcalfe, 1932

Introduction

In 1922, William M. Stewart was appointed as historical secretary of the Portage la Prairie and District Old Timers' Association. His objective was to collect items for a book of “early history of the area, personal memoirs, anecdotes and folk lore, incident to the gradual development of settlement.” Biographical notes on families who had contributed to that development, from the mid-1800s to 1882 when the Canadian Pacific Railway arrived in the area, were also solicited. Questionnaires were distributed throughout the community and advertisements were placed in local newspapers. Progress was slow until, in 1929, a formal publication committee was struck and, perhaps more significantly, a dedicated compiler and editor, Joseph H. Metcalfe, was recruited. Members of the committee included representatives from many of the pioneer families who would figure prominently in a book published in 1932 by Ryerson Press of Toronto under the title of “The Tread of the Pioneers.”

Written in a style that, today, seems quaint and colloquial if not chauvinistic, the book is nevertheless one of the few sources of historical information for Portage la Prairie, the communities (some now gone) of Burnside, Flee Island, High Bluff, Longburn, Oakland, Poplar Point, Rat Creek, Totogon near Lynch's Point, and Westbourne, and the surrounding farmlands. Other sources by early Portage residents include Robert B. Hill's “Manitoba: History of its Early Settlement, Development and Resources” (1890) and Reverend Alfred C. Garrioch's “First Furrows” (1923). Copies of “Tread” can be found in the libraries of the University of Manitoba, the Manitoba Provincial Legislature, several public libraries around the province, and copies in good condition are still available for purchase from antiquarian booksellers.

I created this index while researching people with a connection to the Delta Marsh area, north of Portage la Prairie, many of whom are mentioned somewhere in “Tread.” Although a good source of information, I found the book hard to use because it lacked an index. So, in frustration from inordinate hours spent scanning it cover-to-cover for the umpteenth person for whom I wanted information, I sat down to index the book fully (2,739 entries) and ultimately save myself time. On the assumption that historians, genealogists and others might find the index useful too, I am distributing it on the Internet. Please feel free to give copies to anyone you wish so long as all pages are copied completely and no charge other than the cost of copying is made.

Creating the index proved more difficult than I had initially anticipated. It was not simply a matter of recording all names appearing in the text, the page on which they appeared, and sorting them alphabetically. In numerous cases, decisions had to be made as to how a particular name should be listed. So that readers may know the basis for my choices, and in some cases the source of my errors, the index rules are listed below. They were not rules in the absolute sense; each one was “broken,” often regularly, depending on specific circumstances.

- In some cases, spelling errors in surnames or given names were suspected but, unless the error was sufficiently blatant that it was deemed obvious, all reported spellings were included in the index. As a result, the same person may be indexed under more than one spelling. For example, Reverend Farquhar McCrae, mentioned only on page 254, may be Reverend Farquhar McRae, who appears more frequently.
- In most cases, the short forms of given names (e.g., Joe, Alex) were expanded and combined them with entries reported fully in the text, unless the full name was unclear. For example, Will could be short for William or Wilfred so it was left as written. Familiar forms of given names such as Bob and Jim were replaced with their more formal equivalents Robert and James, respectively, and truncated names such as Jos. and Geo. were expanded to Joseph and George, respectively. In most instances, minor spelling variations on names such as Mathew/Matthew were combined.
- Initials used instead of given names were not expanded unless the presence of two initials made it clear the entry was equivalent to another entry where given names were known. In a few cases, initials were expanded to full names when they were accompanied by a sufficiently unique surname, or they could be deduced by context or from other historical sources.

- A woman's surname was indexed as reported, with her husband's first name or initials followed by "Mrs." unless her given names were known, in which case these would prevail. Her full maiden name, if known, was added too.
- References to families (e.g., Muirs) were recorded as "Muir, Mr." on the assumption, probably correct in all but a few rare cases for the time, that the family was headed by a man with that surname. In cases where a business name appeared to be based on those of the proprietor(s), each of the proprietor surnames was added to the index, with no given names unless these were known, again under the assumption they were male.
- It should not be assumed that multiple page references for a single name represent the same person. Especially for people with common names, and for families prone to repetitious names across generations, it is probable these entries pertain to more than one person. Suffixes of Junior and Senior were deleted, and all such persons were combined, because it was unclear whether they were applied consistently in all cases throughout the book.

- Titles such as "Doctor" and "Colonel" were not used as a basis for indexing but titles were usually retained in the index.

Copies of this index are available, in Adobe Acrobat format, on the web site of the Manitoba Historical Society, located at www.mhs.mb.ca.

A final caveat is that, despite efforts to ensure accuracy and completeness, it is probable that I missed some names or introduced transcription errors. Do bring any changes to my attention at the above address or via email to webmaster@mhs.mb.ca. Updated versions will be posted on the above web site.
