Upper Fort Garry Reborn?

Plans of long-time heritage advocates and the Friends of Upper Fort Garry are being developed for the site. The plans include a new museum, a new hotel, and a new residential building. The site is located on the north side of the city, near the Red River. The plans are being developed by the Friends of Upper Fort Garry, a group of volunteers who have been working to preserve the site since the 1970s. The plans are being developed in consultation with the City of Winnipeg and the Province of Manitoba.

President's Message:

Lord Selkirk and the Abolition of the Slave Trade

This year is the 200th anniversary of the abolition of the British slave trade, a humanitarian reform that has been celebrated around the world, although less because of Britain's achievement than because of the sad need for it. The slave trade seems a long way from Manitoba and its fur trade at the time, but there are several connections, Selkirk.

In late 1806 Selkirk was elected to the House of Commons. He was elected to the House of Commons in 1806. He was elected to the House of Commons in 1806. He was elected to the House of Commons in 1806.

elections were some of the few democratic ones to be found in the unreformed British Parliament.

Although Selkirk did not immediately throw himself into the abolitionist cause, his second reading of the second bill to abolish the slave trade in 1807 was a landmark in the history of abolition.
